GET THE TRUTH ABOUT CITY AND YOU'LL BUY IT AT HOME, COWBOY TELLS OUR READERS

Citizenship is not an empty word. Its meaning is manifold, and if it has its advantages, then, too, it carries its responsibilities. The duties of a good citizen are apparent and easy of execution—they are not to be neglected. Community interests, public-spirited actions, constructive thoughts for the betterment and for the advertisement of the city must originate among the citizenry. These thoughts must be carried into competent function; citizens of the loyal and energetic stamp must poll their ideas and congregate their work so as to have these things radiate into potential force. There is one central, forceful polling place—every progressive community has this civic forum—it is the Chamber of Commerce, and it is the very life's blood of the growing community.

Ladies, keep your eye on the opening of Van Andle's Specialty Shop at 1314 Sartori street. Here is the home of a multitude of things to please the feminine heart—dresses of tempting variety, skirts for sport wear, sweaters, furnishings, and many other things for wear. And here also is a complete art service—party favors, stamp goods, pottery, candlesticks, chinaware, and a host of other things that find a charming place in the home.

To eat well is to live well. Let Smith's Cafe be the answer. Mr. Smith conducts a restaurant where only quality foods are served to his patrons. Conducted under the close watch of his personal supervision, this restaurant is turned to by many of the local people. Nothing pretentious—just a sanitary and pleasant eating place, where one may count on the best to be had.

GALAXY OF STARS IN GREAT FILMS SLATED FOR NEXT WEEK

"Penrod and Sam," Booth Tarkington's famous story of American boy life, was produced at the Hollywood studios by Associated First National Pictures, Inc.

Encouraged by the marvelous reception which the public tendered "Penrod," which was filmed by Marshall Neilan for First National release, the latter organization undertook to put on an even more lavish American boy story from the pen of the famous Tarkington.

Because of William Beaudine's recognition in the art of directing children, he was chosen to handle the directorial megaphone. Beaudine is also famous for his comedy. So universally is his ability recognized to handle children that he has been frequently employed by many producers to make the "kid" sequences of pictures which were under the direction of their own directors.

"Penrod and Sam" will be presented Sunday and Monday, Sept. 30 and Oct. 1.

"The Isle of Lost Ships" is one of the outstanding successes in the history of motion pictures. It is a First National attraction, produced by M. C. Levee and personally directed by Maurice Tourneur.

The reason for its popularity with the lovers of motion pictures are many. Tourneur was given a splendid theme for a big, spectacular picture by the famous novel Crittenden Marriot wrote, and the locale of the tale had never before been used in a photoplay. The weird story also gave the director remarkable scenic effects.

The cast is one of unusual strength, including as it does Milton Sills, Frank Campeau, Walter Long, and Anna Q. Nilsson.

It will be shown at the Torrance theatre Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 2 and 3.

As much as Buster Keaton dislikes to disappoint anyone, least of all a child, he was recently forced to decline an offer to purchase the slap-shoes he uses in his comedies. The offer came from a little boy in Illinois, who wrote that he had seen Buster in numerous comedies and had been told by relatives that he resembled the comedian. The child stated that he had the trick coat and the baggy trousers, but was unable to get the shoes. So, he said, his mother had given him three dollars, which he would spend if his offer was accepted.

Buster, who appears in "The Balloonatic" at the Torrance theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday, confesses frankly that there is anything in his possession he wouldn't part with before he would relinquish those shoes. The shoes are indispensable in his comedies and are consequently rated very highly. Buster promised the kid, however, that if he ever got another pair he would send him the shoes gratis.

John Percival Billings, a haberdashery clerk, by investing 10 cents in a cigar becomes the possessor of considerable wealth and is told that if he does not wish to part with his good health he should take a trip somewhere—where did not matter much. He takes the tip and, as a result, is mixed up in a revolution in a South American republic; is attacked by would-be assassins, and falls in love with the president's daughter. All this is brought to the screen in Walter Hiers' first Paramount star picture, "Mr. Billings Spends His Dime," which comes to the Torrance theatre next Thursday and Friday. Jacqueline Logan, leading woman, heads a strong supporting cast, including George Fawcett, Robert McKim, Patricia Palmer, Joseph Swickard, Guy Oliver, and others.

Maurice, the internationally known dancer, was engaged to stage the French gavotte and other formal court dances in Norma Tal-
